

Shrub Research Consortium

The Shrub Research Consortium was formed in 1983 with five charter members (see list). Over time SRC has grown to its present size of 27 Institutional members. The SRC had three principal objectives in its charter:

1. developing plant materials for shrubland rehabilitation;
2. developing methods of establishing, renewing, and managing shrublands in natural settings; and
3. assisting with publication and dissemination of research results.

These objectives have been met by a series of symposia sponsored by the Consortium and partners. Proceedings of all symposia to date have been published by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Forest Service, Intermountain Research Station and Rocky Mountain Research Station. Each symposium has had a theme, but the executive committee has encouraged attendance and participation by shrubland ecosystem biologists and managers with wider interests than any particular symposium theme – the heart of the Consortium’s programs are wildland shrub ecosystem biology, research, and management.

If your Institution would like information on joining the Consortium please contact Stan Kitchen, Chair of the Executive Committee (skitchen@fs.fed.us)
